Crown Resorts allegedly lied to its regulator and adopted a belligerent attitude towards an investigation into the arrest of 19 of its staff in China, an inquir y into the James Packer-backed casino operator has heard.

&quot;The investigation was particularly protracted because of that defensive po sition and also the provision of material from interviews not being particularly fulsome at times,&quot; he said.

The report found that &quot;Crown&#39;s risk management structure was inadequate to the extent that it failed to identify the risks associated with the operatin g environment in China (including the accepted risk escalation events), so that those risks could then be managed pursuant to that structure&quot;.
&quot;This failure to respond to notices within the specified timeframes appears to be due to Crown choosing to disclose documents to the VCGLR as part of its c lass action discovery process and possibly as a tactic to delay the finalisation of the investigation,&quot; he said in the memo.

Asked by counsel assisting the commission, Penny Neskovcin QC, whether the VCGLR was now considering referring Crown to the supreme court, Bryant said: &quot;I think now it is something the commission would be considering as part of our fin al report and our final outcomes.

The commission also heard claims that Crown gave the VCGLR incorrect information about the extent of a Chinese crackdown on illegal gambling by leaving key word s out of a presentation given by its chief legal officer.
The language about the crackdown in the presentation and the Mintz report was ot herwise very similar but this difference was &quot;quite significant&quot;, he s aid.

Both Preston and Felstead no longer work at Crown.
Whilst for some lucky ones, sports betting has had a great ROI, you can also los
